Two Yemenis arrested in Amsterdam on suspicion of terrorism have been released for lack of evidence, Dutch prosecutors have said.

The men, identified as Ahmed Mohamed Nasser al-Soofi of Detroit, Michigan, and Hezam al-Murisi, were apprehended on a stopover to their destination, Sanaa, the capital of Yemen.

They were arrested after US security spotted suspicious-looking items, including a mobile phone taped to a plastic bottle, in Mr Soofi's luggage which was on a plane bound for Washington Dulles airport while he was on a flight to Amsterdam.
