

Clegg's desperate resurrection of Project Fear falls flat

18/10/2016 16:38 by webmaster

Nick Clegg should focus more on persuading the good people of his town Sheffield the merits of EU membership, who despite his sage advice voted to leave the EU. - UKIP MEP Stuart Agnew

Press Release

Today (18.10.2016) Stuart Agnew MEP, UKIP agriculture spokesman, responding to Nick Clegg's claims that food prices will soar with a "hard Brexit", commented:

"Clegg's desperate resurrection of Project Fear is persuading nobody.

"He should realise the main factors that impact UK food prices are the Chicago Grain Futures Exchange, supermarket pricing policies and the EU's Common Agricultural Policy, which is designed to prop up inefficient farmers on the continent.

"Perhaps he should focus more on persuading the good people of his town Sheffield the merits of EU membership, who despite his sage advice voted to leave the EU."