

Britain betrayed by Labour MEPs and their federalist cabal on Brexit vote

Press Release

â€œ In response to the European Parliamentâ€™s joint resolution from the main federalist groups UKIP proposed 14 separate amendments to protect British interests, from controlling immigration to protecting Gibraltarâ€™s sovereignty. All of these amendments were voted down today with help from Labour MEPs.

Paul Nuttall MEP and UKIP leader commented: â€œFor once it would have been nice for British MEPs to put aside petty party political differences to ensure Britainâ€™s best interests would be served. Needless to say Labour MEPs just couldnâ€™t play nice and voted against protecting Gibraltar from an ever more antagonistic Spain, controlling EU immigration post-Brexit and even to actively disadvantage Britain by not allowing us to pursue free trade deals.â€• â€œI always expected an anti-British attitude from the Euro-federalists but to see it from British Labour MEPs is disappointing. We know their leader wonâ€™t even sing the national anthem but why donâ€™t we all start playing for Team GB in Brussels and Strasbourg?â€•
